

Bored Procedure for Supporting Band Members and Maintaining a Safe Environment

As of January 24th, 2019

The Bored members of the Columbia University Marching Band pledge to support community members who choose to disclose instances of sexual assault, or any forms of harassment, discrimination or violence. We will not prejudge members who disclose, and they will not be blamed for what occurred. Our job as the Bored of the CUMB is to ensure that we create a safe and supportive environment for all bandies, not to adjudicate in any way. In pursuit of this end, we will prioritize the comfort of the survivor or victim, however they choose to identify.

We will take reports seriously regardless of the gender or sexual orientation of the survivor/victim and regardless of the gender or sexual orientation of the perpetrator, and we will not question survivors/victims' experiences. Should a member choose to disclose an instance of assault or harassment to a member of the Bored, the nature of the incident must be shared with the rest of the Bored. Their name will not be shared without their express permission. We will not share their experience with anyone outside the Bored, unless there is serious concern of the member hurting themselves or others.

Our first step will be to make certain that the survivor/victim has access to and knowledge of all of the available resources and recourse. If they wish to take any steps toward reporting outside of a band context, we will encourage and help them report to either the university or law enforcement. We will always remain available for support. The following are some of the resources available on campus, though further information about the confidentiality and services they provide is available through the Bored and through the pertinent websites:

The Bored uses the following definitions and guidelines to inform their choices in responding to and supporting any band member who discloses harassment or violence:

- Consent must be given freely, enthusiastically, and without coercion of any kind. Consent cannot be given freely when one or both individuals are inebriated. If a Bored member sees any interaction wherein it does not seem like both parties have given consent, they will check in with both individuals to ensure that everything is alright, and proceed from there.
- Assault: Non-consensual sexual activity of any kind. This includes but is not limited to non-consensual sexual intercourse, non-consensual oral sex, and all forms of non-consensual sexual touching.
- Sexual Harassment: Unwanted and persistent advances of either a physically or verbally sexual nature. This includes the non-consensual distribution of imagery and video of bandies engaging in sexual activity.
- All of the above definitions and guidelines apply to instances involving any combination of the following people: current bandies, Bored members, strangers attending a band function, and/or band alumni. If a bandie would like to disclose an instance of sexual misconduct between themselves and someone not affiliated with the band that occurred outside of a band setting, for the purposes of seeking support from the Bored, they may do so at any time. Although we cannot take any direct action, the Bored will do everything that it can to ensure that the bandie has access to and knowledge of any and all resources available to them.

In an attempt to preempt any instances of sexual misconduct in a band setting, the Bored will take the following steps:

- There will be full Bored oversight in the planning of any and all social events, with particular attention paid to newly introduced events. In particular, the Bored will look out for any potential red flags or underlying circumstances that may put bandies in circumstances that carry risk of the above delineated misconduct.
- The Bored will take particular precaution when including non-band members in said social events, with higher scrutiny taken in instances of non-Columbia University student participation and/or the participation of minors (under the age of 18).

When responding to disclosures, Bored members will:

1. Address a member's immediate needs in terms of safety.
2. Determine whether the member is speaking to you as a friend or as a member of the band's Bored.
3. If the person is disclosing to you as a Bored member, you must let them know that you will share the incident with the Bored. If the perpetrator is on Bored, they will be made aware separately from the rest of the Bored. The name of the survivor/victim will be left out unless they give express permission to disclose their identity.
 - a. Crucial information includes: the perpetrator's name, and in what ways is the incident in question related to band (i.e. Did this occur at a band event? Did this occur after a band event? Did this occur with someone you met at a band event?)
 - i. If the incident in question does not have anything to do with band, the Bored will still provide support and resources to the survivor/victim regardless of the fact that direct action may not be on behalf of the Bored.
4. Notify the perpetrator that a report was made and that sanctions are being discussed.
 - a. Preliminary Courses of Action
 - i. If the perpetrator is on the Bored, all other Bored members will be made aware.
 - ii. For reports of harassment and discomfort, particularly in the case of first offenses, the Bored will have a conversation with the perpetrator to emphasize the impact of their actions and ask that the behavior stop.
 - b. Sanctions
 - i. In the case of non-consensual sexual activity involving unwanted contact between or with genitalia, the Bored will enforce immediate expulsion of the perpetrator from the band. There shall be no room left for interpretation in cases regarding these kinds of incidents.
 - ii. All other kinds of non-consensual sexual activity, be it physical or verbal, will result in sanctions at the discretion of Bored and will be decided upon in conference with the survivor/victim to ensure their utmost comfort.
 - iii. The vote required to impose sanctions is one less than the remaining number of Bored members. This means 8/9 for issues involving non-Bored members, 7/8 for issues involving one Bored member, and 6/7 for issues involving two Bored members.
 1. Votes will be submitted by closed ballot and counted by two Bored members.
 - iv. The Bored will do everything within reason to respect the wishes of the survivor/victim when imposing sanctions.

- v. Sanctions may include but are not limited to:
 - 1. Banning from all social functions.
 - 2. Banning from specific kinds of band functions (e.g. open parties, scripts, away trips, etc.)
 - a. In the case that the perpetrator is a resident of a space the Band uses for social events, a private conversation between the resident and the Bored is necessary to determine the most appropriate course of action to ensure the safety of the survivor/victim and other band members.
 - 3. In the case of Bored members, a request for their resignation or impeachment, if necessary.
 - 4. Expulsion from the band.
 - vi. The Bored will notify the perpetrator of its decision on sanctions, and inform them that they can write an appeal letter that will be taken under consideration.
5. Other Concerns
- a. If an incident occurs on an away trip, the accused will be sent home, and sanctions will be discussed upon return to campus. The survivor/victim will be given the option of being escorted back to campus by a Bored member.
 - i. If the survivor/victim would like to return to campus on their own, the Bored will do everything it can to assist the individual, both financially and logistically, to get home safely.
 - b. Band members may report on behalf of non-band members who experience sexual assault or harassment from a band member.
 - c. Band members or alumni may report incidents involving band alumni at any time. That alumnus will not be allowed to attend any private band events (meaning any event that is not football games or basketball game, as we cannot feasibly enforce this) or join us on the field at Homecoming.

This document should be reviewed and voted on prior to both First Thursday events, before Bored turnover, and between Tax Day and the Spring Orgo Night. If the Bored updates the document, they must vote on the changes, and the Bored and Band must re-sign the document. This is a living document that is intended for amendment and rewriting whenever it is deemed necessary, and it is a duty of the Bored to ascertain when these appropriate times arise so that the document can reflect any new circumstances that have come to light over the course of the term. As stated throughout, all decisions should be made in accordance with the wishes of and best interest, as asserted by the survivor/victim, of the survivor/victim. The Bored is responsible for the safety of said survivor/victim and of the band at large above all else.

Bored members must sign this agreement upon transfer of power.
It will be available on the website for viewing.
